International Protection

At Amster, Rothstein & Ebenstein LLP, our intellectual property practice knows no borders.

Our clients, domestic and international, rely on us to protect their intellectual property rights in any country in which they do business or wherever their rights may be challenged.

We handle these matters directly with our own attorneys, while simultaneously drawing on our extensive network of associated counsel, investigators and agents throughout the world. We are proud of the track record that this teamwork approach has yielded. We have amassed an impressive record of successes in handling our clients' intellectual property needs before virtually every relevant foreign court or governing body.

Combining in-depth in-house international knowledge and experience with an exceptionally strong domestic litigation and counseling, our International Practice provides clients with the services and the results that they need.
