Amster Rothstein & Ebenstein, a full-service intellectual property law firm, has expanded its trademark and copyright practices with the addition of senior associate Olivia Harris, continuing its strategic growth.

Olivia focuses her practice on litigation involving trademark, copyright, fashion, entertainment, advertising and Internet law issues, representing clients across industries, including many of the world's leading fashion, technology, media, e-commerce, consumer electronics, luxury goods and publishing companies. She also resolves cases through settlement, mediation and arbitration.

She also counsels clients on issues related to monitoring and policing avenues of e-commerce and web-based marketplaces and platforms, uncovering and combating piracy problems, securing domain names through a variety of domain name dispute processes and handles international and domestic trademark prosecution and clearance work.

Olivia has been named New York "Rising Star" for Intellectual Property Litigation by Super Lawyers magazine for the past seven years.

"Historically, our firm has been a leader in the development of trademark and unfair competition law, and we welcome Olivia to support our ever-expanding practice in this field," said Managing Partner Anthony Lo Cicero.
