IPWatchdog Notes Arrival of Cooper & Dunham Lawyers to Amster Rothstein & Ebenstein

IPWatchdog covered the recent arrival of a team of lawyers, paralegals and scientific advisors from intellectual property boutique law firm Cooper & Dunham to Amster Rothstein & Ebenstein.

As the article notes, "The new group represents a wide range of clients from startups to Fortune 500 companies and brings particular expertise in biotechnology, chemistry, and pharmaceutical arts. The group has extensive patent litigation experience in Federal Courts throughout the United States, as well as administrative proceedings before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, including Inter-Partes Review (IPR), Post-Grant Review (PGR) and appeals, and before patent offices outside of the United States, including opposition proceedings."
